

Partners in Parenting

2019

Annual Report

INTRODUCTION

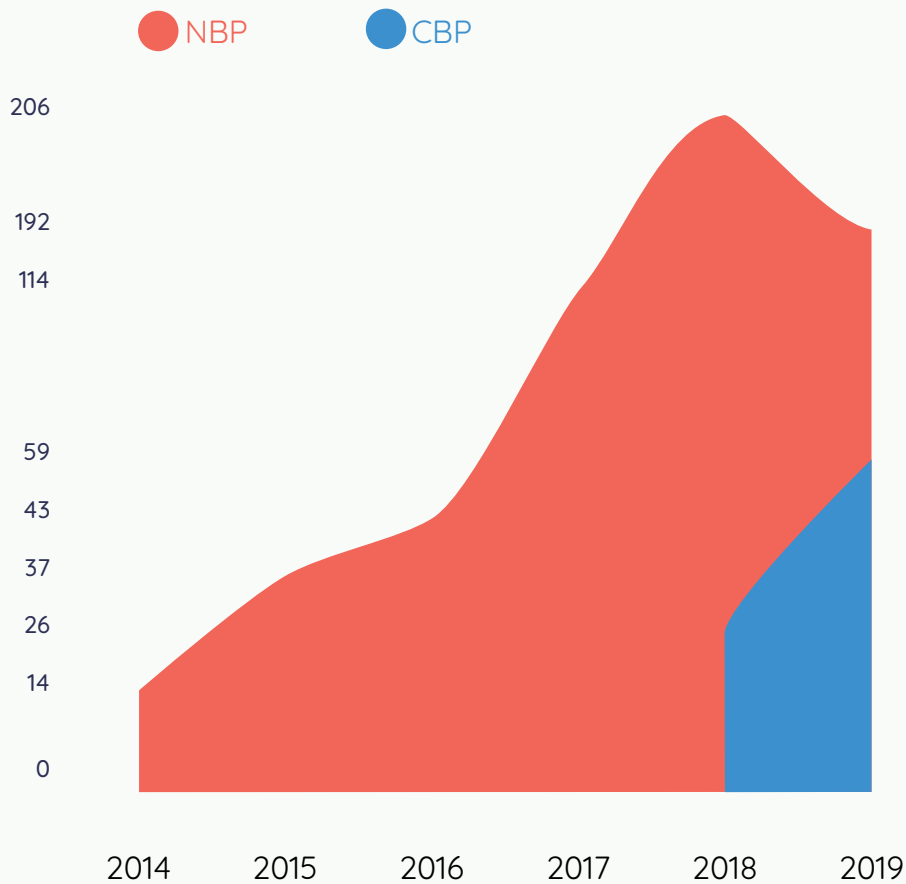

Every year since our founding in 2014, Partners in Parenting (PIP) has expanded our reach, moving us closer to fulfilling our mission to build a village for all new families. We believe the greatest influencing factor in early childhood is the relationship between a child and a caring adult.

To date, nearly 700 families have participated in PIP's newborn and baby groups, including over 85 families in our free Community Based Program. We have served families residing in over 40 different zip codes so far, and continue to focus on ensuring that all new parents have access to the support needed in the vulnerable first months of their baby's life.

OUTCOMES

After completing a PIP group parents tell us...

- 70% - I know more about postpartum depression and anxiety.
- 78% - I learned about activities to do with my baby.
- 84% - I feel less overwhelmed and stressed about parenting.
- 85% - I feel more confident caring for my baby.
- 85% - I feel less isolated.
- 86% - I have more local connections to people who can support me as a parent.
- 87% - I have more knowledge of where to find useful resources about child development and parenting.

Because of PIP...

Stephanie had the diapers she needed to get through the week.

Alejandra had a reason to get out of bed when she was feeling depressed.

Jose told his version of the birth story for the first time and admitted how scary it was to see his wife on the operating table.
